Joseph Dugan has been a successful civil litigation attorney in New York City for over 20 years, the last sixteen of which were spent at highly respected insurance defense firms. He has also represented clients in real estate, matrimonial, intellectual property, employment, and criminal matters, though his practice is primarily focused on insurance defense. He has also worked for New York's Channel 13/WNET and World Wrestling Entertainment, and also produces a television program that has run for nine years and is currently broadcast in 59 countries, streaming domestically on Prime Video and Tubi.

Joseph graduated on the Dean's list from The Ohio State University in 2001. He obtained his Juris Doctorate degree from the St. John's University School of Law, also perennially on the Dean's list, in June of 2004. He was admitted to New York State Practice on January 12, 2005, and to the Eastern and Southern District Courts of New York on April 6, 2007.

Outside of his practice, Joseph's interests include combat sports, bass guitar, drums, non-fiction, independent film, dog rescue, Irish history, and skee-ball.
